CHSLD-SPECIAL / IMPORTANT

When a senior is admitted to a CHSLD, a residential center, a RPA or any other health care center, all of their personal effects must be identified. The purchase of the special CHSLD is then recommended. It provides all types of labels needed for this task. When the order is submitted before 4:00 p.m., it will be shipped the same day using the shipping method chosen. Thus, the installation of labels will begin quickly, and all clothing and personal effects of the resident will be identified before their arrival at the establishment.

1. Clothing Labels

Families often think that a single package of 96 labels will be enough to identify a parent's clothing before admission to a CHSLD. Since establishments ask families to provide clothing for a 2-week rotation, there will be many items to identify. You have to think about spring, summer, winter clothes, etc. Identifying the stockings alone will require 30-40 labels, since 2 labels must be used per pair. Initially, families do not realize the magnitude of the task, but some pragmatic people will use up to 3 or 4 packets. So a pack of 96 labels will rarely be enough, except in some very special cases.

The CHSLD-SPECIAL includes 2 packs of labels (192) for clothing. Afterwards, the family can order additional packs individually according to their needs. Labels that do not fade or come-off when washed, even in institutional machines. Since 1986, we have offered the strongest labels in the industry.

Two models available :

Iron-On

Quick to attach to clothing with an iron. Glue to synthetic fabrics by covering them with a sheet of parchment paper.

Resists washing, even in institutional machines.

Follow the instructions provided.

Sew-On

For those who prefer without glue.

2. Personal Items Labels

The CHSLD-SPECIAL includes a pack of labels (96) in self-adhesive vinyl (extra-strong glue) to identify all of the resident's personal effects. It is recommended not only to identify clothing, but all objects in the room such as: hairbrush, toothbrush, denture box, Kleenex box, glasses case, remote control, cane, small radio, cell phone, pen, etc.

It sometimes happens that a confused resident or one suffering from Alzheimer's disease enters another person's room and comes out with one or more objects. Since the stolen items are identified, as soon as they are spotted by the establishment staff, they are quickly returned to your parent's room.

3. Anti-Theft Labels

Finally, the CHSLD-SPECIAL includes 12 anti-theft labels. They are intended for items of greater value. It is common for families to bring a television, a mobility scooter, a folding wheelchair, a walker, a special chair, a fan, an air conditioner or other items of high value. These labels are special and safe, because it is impossible to remove them once stuck. They are large (1½" x 3") and the resident's name is printed in large red letters.

These labels were designed to protect family assets when the person dies. High demand requires establishments to empty the room quickly and staff store these items in a common storage room until families return to collect them. It is common for these items to disappear when another family claims it belongs to them. When these family assets are identified, they remain on site and staff can better control their properties.

Clothing Labels

Personal items Labels

Self-adhesive vinyl, water-resistant and robust
Dishwasher and micro-waves resistant.

Quick and easy to attach labels to identify personal items such as: hairbrush, toothbrush, denture box, Kleenex box, glasses case, remote control, cane, walker, cell phone, etc. It is important that all of the person's effects are identified. Residents sometimes forget objects in common areas. It also happens that a confused resident or one suffering from Alzheimer's disease enters another person's room and comes out with one or more objects. Since they are identified, the missing items, as soon as they are spotted, are returned to your parent's room.
